

Swedish Hardrock Band tours Europe

New album "Force Majeure" coming this August

Original singer Kenny Leckremo back on the microphone

Swedish melodic hard rockers H.E.A.T. have just toured Europe with their album "H.E.A.T II". Fittingly, as the album marks a return of the early days in the bands history there's a significant change in the line up that welcomes original singer Kenny Leckremo back at the microphone to open up another exciting chapter in the band's career. The reunited original members immediately started to work on new material for their numerous fans in Europe, Scandinavia, the UK and Japan: With their new single "Hollywood", H.E.A.T. announced their next album "Force Majeure", which will be released in August.

The band history of Swedish hardrock quintet H.E.A.T is as eventful as it is successful. Since it's foundation in 2007 the band toured tirelessly and due to their captivating shows turned audiences into loyal fanbases in Scandinavia, Europe, Great Britain and Japan. Even the crucial change of lead vocalists shortly after the release of their second album from original voice Kenny Leckremo to Swedish Idol participant Erik Grönwall continued the success story of H.E.A.T undeterred. The band's six studio albums to date receive increasing interest and critical acclaim by the international rock music platforms and media with each new release.

›H.E.A.T II‹ the bands most recent release (February 2020 via earMUSIC) marks the current high point in the band's career. Written, recorded and produced entirely by the band alone the album sees the band's return to the classic rock sound of their early days but effortlessly combines it with the confidence and nonchalance the band of experienced musicians has today.

So it's only fitting that not only the sound, but also the band's line up came somewhat full circle: Even though it's still Erik Grönwall on vocal duties on ›H.E.A.T II‹, he decided to leave the band in October 2020. This paved the way for founding member Kenny Leckremo to jump at the chance he has been waiting for so eagerly. He now joins the band full time as their new but not so new singer which marks a very exciting new stage in the band's career.

H.E.A.T are:

Kenny Leckremo – Vocals
Dave Dalone – Guitar
Jimmy Jay – Bass
